Description:

A bit like poodle fur though if you have ever felt a poodle, this fur is considerably softer and fluffier than the real thing (plus no fear of biting). The fibres are grouped then twisted into little curls and tipped in a lighter shade which defines the shape and texture even more.

This would make a great visual and textural element in a neutral themed lounge or bedroom. The soft honey or sand shades would blend beautifully with creams to dark chocolate browns. The fabric is soft enough to relax with, so making it into large throw cushions would be a great idea.

If you wanted to make arm or head rests for you sofa, you can cut and shape this fabric very easily with normal sharp scissors. You could even cut the fabric to size for a cosy floor rug. This would feel luxurious and with other additions of this fabric it would really tie the room together. We have a soft pale brown, golden beige and ivory shades available.

For fashion wear you could use this fabric for lining on the inside of a coat for extra warmth. The fabric would insulate against harsh winters and would feel very cosy. Alternatively, you or show it off by using it as the main coat fabric, so others could feel the softness!
